Interesting. My first quick reading of the material brought to mind the years we spent trying to get LDEQ and EPA to understand that the hazardous waste incinerators at PPG in Calcasieu and Rollins in Baton Rouge were actually chlorinated dioxin/furan generators instead of destroyers because their Three T's (Time in the flame, Temperature in the flame, and Turbulence in the flame) were not sufficient to destroy the precursors but were ideal for creating the much more toxic and bioaccumulative chlorinated double-ringed molecules. We finally forced a 6-Nines guidance that the companies eventually claimed they could attain.

Despite the apparent actual existing presence of dioxins and PCBs in the Clean Harbors material their "Contained Burn Chamber System" will have a DRE or Destruction Removal Efficiency of 99.99% which is only 4-Nines.

Why LDEQ and EPA would allow that much lower DRE than for the incinerators that still at 6-Nines created long-lasting problems is bewildering to me.

Maybe I am just too tired and old to see something wonderful about the Clean Harbors situation. (I do think if I were a regulator there to watch a trial burn I would do it with a strong pair of binoculars, not right up close!)

Hi Monica,

I've checked with those of us that are in the office this week, and we do not have records to indicate that this response was sent to General Honore or shared with the front office for review. Iris looked at

Ex. 5 AC/DP

Iris would like to try and get this signed by Dr Nance tomorrow, if possible.

Thank you so much for drafting the original response, and hopefully, much of the work has already been done.

Yes, you are right Stacey. It was LCARD, not Enforcement. Of course Melissa is the lead on Colfax. Charles, please go straight to Melissa and let her know we need assistance with a brief letter response to the community/advocacy groups. It's time we updated them on where we, especially in light of the email chain below. Thanks.

Regarding the Clean Harbors application, it was mainly LCRD (Melissa Smith), not Enforcement. I recommend Charles should start with Melissa. Melissa worked on the OB/OD guidance comments, options with HQ contractor to evaluate the waste that have alternative technology, and options for reducing several components.

Team,

I would like to respond to this. We have done groundbreaking work on Clean Harbors/Colfax, but much of our work is enforcement confidential so I need assistance in preparing a brief email response that addresses what we are actually doing. Of course we are being accused of not doing enough, but in this case that's not true.
